RENO WOMEN ACCIDENTALLY EXCHANGE FALSE CURLS

Two Reno women recently had a horrid "mix-up" while traveling from the metropolis to San Francisco. In the darkness of their Pullman berths these women carelessly exchanged their surplus hair ornaments, and because one was a blonde and the other a pronounced brunette, unlimited amusement was created among the other passengers on the cars; laughter was even provoked among the occupants of the street cars upon their arrival in the bay city and brought forth smiles from the passersby on the street and created confusion bordering on riot, to the ladies and themselves, when they glanced into a convenient mirror at a prominent San Francisco hotel.

Both women were elegantly dressed and would have attracted more than passing attention, because of their striking beauty. They hastily retired to their rooms, following the discovery of their predicament, and did not again appear until they had effected the exchange of curly locks, which were to all outward appearances as natural as the eyes in their physiognomies.

When interviewed by a newspaper man the ladies admitted that they were somewhat weary when they retired to their bunks and that the porter did not call them until they were only twenty minutes away from Oakland pier. In their haste to dress, they explained, they made the exchange which proved so disastrous and provoked so much mirth. Needless to say these women were not from Tonopah, for the ladies' locks grow down this way like the tules of the wash, prolific and resplendent with coloring.

DEATH OF FORMER COMSTOCK RESIDENT

The deceased was a native of Ireland, aged 75 years, and was greatly esteemed by all who knew her. She left this city some years ago. Mrs. Smith leaves three sons in Carson and a daughter, Mrs. William Donovan, wife of Superintendent Donovan of the Silver Hill mine.—Virginia Enterprise.

MINING AND MILLING IN RAWHIDE DISTRICT

The Coalition company is still carrying on development work at the company's workings on Balloon hill. The high grade ore on the 350-foot level is still holding out, alongside of which they have about two feet of good milling ore.

The new automatic gold separator, which was shipped from Los Angeles last Monday, is expected to arrive at Schurz within a day or two. Along with it will come a man from the coast to superintend the installation of the plant, which will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

It is claimed that the separator will handle 50 tons daily, and President King states that if it works as its inventors claim he will add another one to the plant, at the same time putting in another tube mill, in which event the company expects to be able to handle about 100 tons of ore daily, and at the same time effect a good saving of values.

Aside from the ore that is being developed by the Coalition company there is a lot of other ore in the district that could be handled, as soon as it is shown that a proper saving can be made.

The Steinheimers, who have several good properties in the section about the Royal, say they have a large quantity of ore that will run from $12 to $20 per ton. As soon as the new plant is placed in position they will send down a trial run of their ores of 500 tons, if necessary, should that much be needed to test out the plant. Then Mr. Stockton, of the Black Eagle, says that he has an almost unlimited amount of good milling ore that he will be glad to have treated at the new plant. He claims to have at present 1500 tons of ore already blocked out and broken in the property, which he is ready to send to the mill as soon as it is ready to receive it.

The Phoenix lease on the Coalition is taking out ore steadily. It has 100 tons in the bins and as much more is broken down in the mine. The leasers are now awaiting their turn at the mill in order to have their ore worked.—Press Times.

REPUBLICANS SHOULD WIN

SOME REASON WHY THE PARTY SHOULD RETAIN CONTROL OF THE HOUSE

There are leading reasons why the republican party should have control of the house of representatives and the federal government.

First, the legislative record of the party—the full record of its half century of existence, the record of the last seven congresses since it resumed power on March 4, 1897, and the record of the extra and the first regular session of the present congress—all this is conclusive proof of its wisdom, its constructive ability, and its unselfish devotion to the best interests of the people and their government.

The second reason is because, in response to a demand of the people, the republican party pledged a revision of the tariff, and kept its pledge, observing not only the letter but also the spirit of the declaration. While we did not expressly promise revision downward, yet it was so understood by the people, and what the people expected they gained in full measure at the special session of congress called by President Taft.

The third reason is because the people should indorse the administration of President Taft by giving him a substantial republican majority in the next house to work with the republican senate in making complete the fulfillment of republican pledges, and in carrying out to the full the recommendations of the president.

There may be some congressmen who are reluctant to admit that all this tremendous amount of good legislation was accomplished with the active aid of the president. I am not one of those. I give to the president the full credit for the part he played. There is glory enough to be divided in good measure between the executive and congress. Never before in our history has there existed such complete harmony between the president and both houses of congress as has been since the 4th of March, 1909. This, I say, is a strong reason why the next house should be republican, in order that our splendid team work may not be interrupted, but may go on to the benefit of the nation and the welfare of the people.

With a democratic house we would have in the speaker's chair Mr. Champ Clark, who once announced on the floor of the house that, if he could, he would tear down the custom house of every American port. As chairman of the ways and means committee we would have Mr. Underwood of Alabama, who declares himself unequivocally for a revenue tariff. We would then have a tariff bill sent to the senate which, though it would be buried there, would nevertheless throw alarm into every bank, every factory, every farm and every counting-house, and would paralyze every source of production, transportation and consumption in the country.—James A. Tawney in the Munsey.

TURNER AT ELY LOOKING AFTER TUNGSTEN MINES

Determined to institute work of a permanent character on three distinct groups of tungsten mines in the eastern part of White Pine county, which form the nucleus of the so-called tungsten trust, Oscar A. Turner, the millionaire mine promoter, and head of the United States Tungsten company, arrived Saturday night from San Francisco, says the Ely Expositor.

In company with E. L. Fletcher, his local representative, Mr. Turner left this morning by auto for the Hub, where consistent development work has been in progress on these properties since they were acquired a year ago by Mr. Turner. He will examine the new concentrator and milling plant that is rapidly nearing completion at the Hub.

Wishing to control the visible supply of tungsten ores in the United States, Mr. Turner on his present trip will arrange to have operations started on a group of mines in the Red Hills district, on which a bond and option was taken by Mr. Fletcher about two months ago from Casten Olsen and G. G. Sims. The consideration is said to be $50,000.

The eastern magnate also expects to begin explorations on the mines owned by the Huebner Tungsten company near Shoshone, a subsidiary corporation which is affiliated with the tungsten trust. Mr. Turner will spend a week in the eastern part of the county.

CENSUS ENUMERATORS PADDED THEIR REPORTS

In all parts of the country it is being discovered that the reports of the census enumerators have been padded, and especially in the northwestern cities, where false reports averaging 40 per cent of the population have been found. In Tacoma an increase of 120 per cent over that of 1910 was reported to the census bureau and on this report another census was ordered taken. The last shows that the original had been padded to the extent of 40 per cent. The same condition exists in other northwestern cities and the chief of the census bureau has asked the president to place the matter in the hands of the attorney general of the United States and that criminal proceedings be instituted against the census officials in that territory.
